

School Community Journal Description and Submission Information (see the final section below for the Call for Papers presented in the Fall/Winter 2023 issue)

The school can function as a thriving community. The School Community Journal includes research and field reports related to the school functioning as a community of teachers, students, parents, and staff. Family-school relations, site-based management, homework, sociology of education, systems theory, the classroom community, and other topics concerning early childhood and K-12 education are covered. Book reviews are also included.

Editorial Policy and Procedure

Since 1991, the nonpartisan School Community Journal has been committed to scholarly inquiry, discussion, and reportage of topics related to the community of the school. Manuscripts are considered in four categories: (1) research (original, review, and interpretation), (2) essay and discussion, and (3) reports from the field, including descriptions of programs, and (4) book reviews. The journal generally follows the format suggested in the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 7th ed., with the exceptions and additional instructions noted below (see “Please Note” below). Please avoid politically or otherwise polarizing or deficit language (used to describe groups, peoples, belief systems, races, etc.)—all our children need all adults collaborating, and such language is a barrier to true partnerships.

Contributors should send, via e-mail attachments of electronic files (in Word), the manuscript including a one paragraph abstract of no more than 250 words; a one paragraph description of each author, including current position and research interests; and a mailing address, phone number, and email address where each author can be reached to:

editor@adi.org

As a refereed journal, all submissions undergo a blind peer review selection process. Therefore, please include the author’s description and other identifying information in a separate electronic file. The abstract and any tables or figure should be included in one file with the manuscript. Identifying references may be designated “Author, year” for the review. The cover letter should state that the work is not under simultaneous consideration by other publications. Mailing us a hard copy of the manuscript is not necessary.

The use of artificial intelligence (AI) to create submissions is discouraged; any use of AI in creating a submission should be fully disclosed and explained (how and to what extent) in the cover letter accompanying the submission.

Please Note: The SCJ generally follows the format of the APA Publication Manual (7th ed.), which includes new information on how to cite online sources in the reference list. However, please give the most direct link possible to the source cited, and make sure electronic links cited are accurate and active. Use italics rather than underlining. Do not use tabs to format paragraphs (use “first line indent” function) or tables (use “insert table” function). Color for tables or figures is acceptable (as long as the color is helpful and not distracting). Please use acronyms sparingly and identify all that are used.

Open Access: This is an open access journal which means that all content is freely available without charge to the user immediately upon publication. Users are allowed to read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of the articles, or use them for any other lawful purpose, without asking prior permission from the publisher or the author. We do ask that citation information be included along with a link to the School Community Journal website: <http://www.schoolcommunitynetwork.org/SCJ.aspx>

Please note that authors are not charged for publication.

Articles are open access, distributed under the terms and conditions of the Creative Commons Attribution license CC BY-NC-ND (<https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/4.0/>).

Copyrights are held by the Academic Development Institute; republication by an author in another publication must be approved in advance by the School Community Journal editors.

Call for Papers presented in the Fall/Winter 2023 issue, an excerpt of that issue’s Editors’ Comments: see [SCJFW2023FrontMatter.pdf \(adi.org\)]

Our journal has always focused on ways to help all students succeed in school and life by helping the adults around them, primarily their family and teachers, work together for their success. True collaboration among teachers, among parents, and between teachers and parents can be hard, but that is the essence of community building to support every student. As Sam reminds us, “Devotion to children they know, love, and call by name is a powerful motivation.”

Our simple question, and one that we hope will inspire a flurry of article submissions to SCJ is: How can a school better function as a community to do what other schools (that do not function as communities) cannot? This leads to other questions, for example: How can better relationships be built among adults to support each and every child? Can we systematically examine the amount and quality of attention each and every child gets from caring adults and devise ways to fill in the voids? How can we offer more effective support and practical advice for harried parents? What would organized, family-to-family assistance look like? How are people ramping up volunteer programs? Our imagination is limited, but the problem is great, and we know that SCJ readers and writers will respond to our appeal with stories of what school communities are already doing and ideas for what they could do.
